

Can you help?

Police investigate accostings in North Kent

Police in North Kent are appealing for information as part of an investigation into three reports of alleged accostings in the area.

The incidents which occurred between 13 January and the 30 January involved both boys and girls aged between eight and eleven.

In each case the driver of a car, who is described as being white and in his 30s, approached the children and then drove off without causing any harm.

Detective Inspector Chris Collier, leading the investigation, said: "At the moment we believe the three incidents are linked; it is also possible that there have been other incidents which we are not aware of and I urge that these people contact police."

If anyone has any information which may help police, please contact DI Collier on 01474 366098 or Kent Crimestoppers, anonymously on 0800 555 111

Can you help?

Police investigate accostings in North Kent

Police in North Kent are appealing for information as part of an investigation into three reports of alleged accostings in the area.

The incidents which occurred between 13 January and the 30 January involved both boys and girls aged between eight and eleven.

In each case the driver of a car, who is described as being white and in his 30s, approached the children and then drove off without causing any harm.

Detective Inspector Chris Collier, leading the investigation, said: "At the moment we believe the three incidents are linked; it is also possible that there have been other incidents which we are not aware of and I urge that these people contact police."

If anyone has any information which may help police, please contact DI Collier on 01474 366098 or Kent Crimestoppers, anonymously on 0800 555 111

